PRESIDENT'S CORNER

A WORD TO THE CLASS OF 1979

Commencement is intended to be a new beginning, a time to make a fresh start. But we who teach or guide the academic enterprise are also tempted to think of commencement as a kind of final inspection, the time when we put our little inspection slips into the pockets of your minds, certifying that our work has been up to par. Deep down, of course, we know we can't claim credit for your accomplishments, your thoughts, your growth. And we also know that the task of education, especially our own, is never finished. Nevertheless, as we complete this final ceremonial inspection, we feel compelled to add one final word of advice. It's really a little presumptuous to do this, but as teachers we can never quit teaching. We feel like patriarchs on our deathbeds, obligated to say something profound in parting which will guide you to paradise after we pass on.

One favorite commencement aphorism is this: "Do not mistake the acquisition of knowledge for wisdom. Learning is not wisdom. One who has been merely the receptacle for his teachers' ideas, hasn't gained much. He is a reservoir, not a fountain . . . Unless his knowledge is converted into wisdom, in faculty, it will become stagnant like still water."

With all due respect to J. E. Dinger whose words I've just quoted, I think it might be more appropriate at commencement to avoid such high sounding riddles or exhortations to transform knowledge into wisdom.

Of course, there surely must be some difference between knowledge and wisdom, but I for one must admit that I can't explain what it is. And I admit I haven't any last word of wisdom to speed you on your way to paradise. But I would like to share one idea, one thought, which is comforting to me whenever I look back over my academic pursuits and still feel very ignorant, in spite of all the years of study. It is this: Whatever wisdom is, it must surely be something like music--something that resonates in our souls to awaken joy and a sense of beauty, something that takes us beyond what we know to something we can simply live.

A friend of mine said it well in a poem he called "Final Reflection #14."

I do not know that the bird is not pestered with thought.
I am not sure whether, when the sap starts downward, the green leaf shudders.
I wonder about the weight of the dews that the free wind paves.
The cow that chews the damp grass
in the pasture:
at what expense
the puffing of her udder?

There is so much not to learn,
so many sprouts to leave untouched,

HONORARY DEGREES CONFERRED

Dr. Frederick E. Blumer, president of Lycoming College, conferred honorary doctorates on a bishop, a scientist and an accountant during the 131st annual commencement exercises held Sunday afternoon May 6th on the campus quad.

Bishop John B. Warman received the doctor of humane letters degree; he is resident bishop of the Harrisburg Area, The United Methodist Church. Bishop Warman was presented his degree by Dr. Richard A. Hughes, assistant professor of religion and chaplain of the college. He was cited for "passionate dedication to spiritual service and a perceptive understanding of the needs of others." He resides in Harrisburg.

Dr. Lewis M. Branscomb, chief scientist and vice president of International Business Machines Corporation, was presented for the doctor of science degree by Dr. Morton A. Fineman, professor of physics at Lycoming. Branscomb was honored for "superior achievement and major contributions to progress and growth in education and science." He is a resident of Armonk, N.Y.

Donald J. Kirk received the doctor of laws degree for "outstanding contributions to the accounting profession and for exemplary and forceful leadership of the standards board." Dr. Kirk is president of the Financial Accounting Standards Board in Greenwich, Conn., where he resides. He was presented for his honorary degree by Harold H. Shreckengast, Jr., a member of the college board of trustees.

Bishop Warman also delivered the baccalaureate address "Some Doubts, Some Certainties" Sunday morning in the First United Methodist Church, Williamsport.

Bishop Warman is a graduate of Western Maryland College and Andover Newton Theological School and has also received honorary degrees from Western Maryland, Allegheny College and Lebanon Valley College. He served as chaplain in the U.S. Navy early in his career and was pastor of six different churches in the Western Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist Church during the three decades prior to becoming resident bishop of the Harrisburg Area in 1972. He also served three years from 1962 to 1965 as district superintendent in the Pittsburgh District of the Western Pennsylvania

Conference of the church.

During the three decades he served as a parish minister and district superintendent, he was active in various church and educational organizations. He also served on the Human Relations Commission of the City of Pittsburgh, on the United Cerebral Palsy Board and on the Allegheny County Council on Alcoholism. He is a trustee of both Lebanon Valley and Dickinson Colleges and holds membership in several Masonic bodies.

Dr. Branscomb completed his undergraduate studies at Duke University and received both his master and doctor degrees from Harvard. He has also received honorary doctorates from Western Michigan University, the University of Rochester, Duke and the University of Colorado. He joined the teaching faculty at Harvard in 1950 after completing his graduate studies, and in 1951 left Harvard to become a physicist with the National Bureau of Standards. He was instrumental in the organization in 1962 of the Joint Institute of Laboratory Astrophysics, a cooperative program between the bureau and the University of Colorado, and in 1969 he was promoted to director of the NBS. He was named vice president and chief scientist at IBM, the position he presently holds, in 1972.

He has been active in numerous scientific organizations and has received a number of awards for his contributions to science and scientific research. He is presently serving as president of the American Physical Society.

Dr. Kirk graduated from Yale University and received his master of business administration degree from New York University. He became affiliated with Price Waterhouse and Company in 1959 and was named a partner in the firm in 1967. He served at both the Washington, D.C., and New York offices of Price Waterhouse during his 14-year tenure with the company.

When the Financial Accounting Standards Board was formed in 1973, Kirk was appointed as a member of the new organization, and in 1977 was promoted to chairman of the board. FASB is the national regulatory body for accounting matters. He has also been active in professional organizations and takes a leading part in community affairs in Greenwich.

CASE Alumni Giving Incentive Awards in Final Round

Lycoming College has been chosen for the final round of judging in the sustained performance category of the 1979 Alumni Giving Incentive Awards Program sponsored by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education.

Lycoming was selected for consideration in the improvement category as a result of recording an increase of almost 33 per cent from $43,935 in 1976-77 to $58,360 in 1977-78. The number of donors rose from 1,492 to 1,614. Contributions more than doubled in the last four years.

Colleges and universities, to qualify for the competition had to record at least a 25 per cent increase in the amount of gifts received from alumni in 1977-78 and at least a 10 per cent increase in the number of alumni contributing. The guidelines also stipulate that there can be no year-to-year decline either in the amount of alumni giving or in the number of alumni donors for the most recent four years.

The CASE program, now in its twenty-first year, seeks to recognize those institutions and alumni for significant commitment to encourage private voluntary support for education. More than $741,000 in awards have been made the United States Steel Corporation during that time, and it is expected that $60,000 will be awarded this year.

The awards will be presented at the CASE Annual Assembly to be held this July in New Orleans. Institutions receiving awards will be notified by mid-June, CASE officials said.

Graduate Awarded Second In Theatre Competition

A Montoursville student who received his bachelor of arts degree May 6 has been awarded second place in a national writing competition.

Glenn E. McCreary, an art/English major at Lycoming, won the award for his written criticism of plays produced during the recently completed American College Festival in Washington, D.C. Eight plays were presented during the festival by students from colleges and universities chosen earlier in regional competition throughout the United States.

Competition was also held during the regional festivals in such categories as criticism, playwrighting, scenery, costumes and acting. McCreary was named to represent Region XII in the national finals as a result of his written critical analysis of plays presented during the regional festival in January at Pennsylvania State University.

The first-place award at the national level is a one-month internship in critical writing at the Eugene O'Neill Center in Waterford, CT. McCreary is the alternate to receive the internship if the winner is unable to attend.

McCreary was art editor for The Spectator, the student newspaper at Lycoming, and also wrote criticisms of both art and plays for the paper.

TRUSTEES ELECT THREE

Three new members were elected to the Lycoming College Board of Trustees and officers were chosen at the annual meeting of the board held April 20. Seven holdover members were also re-elected at the session.

New members named to three-year terms, effective July 1, were David V. Brouse, of 830 St. Davids Road, Williamsport; the Rev. Walter M. Schell, pastor of Faith United Methodist Church, Montoursville; and David J. Loomis, of Troy, R.D.#1, who will be the alumni representative on the board.

Brouse, who is operations manager of the Sylvania Division, General Telephone and Electronics, graduated from Lycoming in 1947. Active in community affairs, he just completed a term as president of the West Branch Manufacturers Association and is a member of Pine Street United Methodist Church. He is also currently serving as a member of both the planning and leadership gifts committees of the Partners in Progress Campaign, a drive presently being conducted to raise at least $1,700,000 to help finance construction of the new physical education recreation center under construction on campus.

The Rev. Mr. Schell, active in both community and church affiliated organizations, in June will begin serving as superintendent of the Williamstown District of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist Church. A son, W. Scott, attends Lycoming, and a daughter, Melodie D., has enrolled as a freshman for the upcoming academic year.

Loomis, who graduated from Lycoming in 1961, was a former member of the college faculty. He resigned as associate professor of psychology in 1976 to enter private business in Troy. He is an active layman in the Troy United Methodist Church and has also continued his association with Lycoming through participation in the alumni association.

Meet Lycoming's Trustees . . .

KENNETH E. HIMES, treasurer of the college and a member of the administrative staff since 1948, has also been a member of the Board of Trustees since 1969. His long period of dedicated service to Lycoming will come to an end, at least in part, at the end of June when he will retire as treasurer. However, he will continue to serve the college as a member of the board and its finance and honorary degree committees.

Himes, a native of Millerstown, graduated in 1935 from Drexel Institute of Technology with a bachelor of science degree and in 1944 from the Rutgers Graduate School of Banking. His thesis title was "Some Effects of the Public Debt on Post War Banking." He was associated with a utility company as an auditor for two years after graduating from Drexel and was cashier and trust officer at the First National Bank of Montoursville-Bank of Central Pennsylvania from 1939 until accepting the position as treasurer and business manager at Lycoming in 1948. He was relieved of the duties of business manager in 1973 in a reassignment of responsibilities in the administrative staff. He also served as vice president of the college, a temporary position established during the tenure of John G. Detweiler as acting president in 1968-69.

Himes has been an active member of Faith

Re-elected for three-year terms on the board were W. Gibbs McKenney, Paul G. Gilmore, Mrs. Robert B. Jones, Dr. Robert G. Little, G. Jackson Miller, Dr. Fred A. Pennington and the Rev. Dr. Wallace F. Stettler.

Officers re-elected include McKenney, chairman; Nathan W. Stuart, vice chairman, and Gilmore, secretary. William L. Baker was also elected to replace Kenneth E. Himes as treasurer of the college when Himes retires on June 30.

The board also adopted two resolutions. One recognized "31 years of loyal service and unparalleled contributions to the college" by Himes. The second was a resolution of respect for the late Oliver E. Harris, director of development at Lycoming at the time of his death on February 24, 1979.

Also approved was the organization of a student judiciary committee which will serve as a peer tribunal in student disciplinary procedures. The board established Friday, October 12, as the meeting date for the fall session.

Baker, director of financial aid and business manager at Lycoming, and treasurer-elect, graduated from Lycoming in 1957. He has been on the administrative staff at his alma mater since 1965 when he came to the college as assistant business manager and director of buildings and grounds. He was named director of financial aid in 1967 when a fulltime director of buildings and grounds was appointed. He was promoted from assistant to business manager in 1973.

Before joining the Lycoming staff, Baker had been employed as business manager of Foltz Chevrolet, now John Powell Chevrolet, Williamsport. He resides in Jersey Shore and is a member of borough council.

Himes will continue to serve Lycoming as a member of the board of trustees and its finance and honorary degree committees.

United Methodist Church, Montoursville, and has been treasurer and member of the board of stewards of the church and has served as superintendent of the Sunday School. He is a member of the board of the United Methodist Homes for the Aged and Nursing Homes. He is a member of various professional social and fraternal organizations, including Masonic orders, Texas Blackhawk Fish and Game Club, Ross Club, College and University Society of Business Officers and the National Association of Accountants. He is also a member of the Leadership Gifts Committee for the Partners in Progress Campaign.

He is married to the former Thelma Dieffenbacher, who completed requirements for her degree at Lycoming in 1964 after their son, K. Alan, graduated from college.

Honorary Trustee Dr. L. Elbert Wilson Dies

Word has been received of the death of the Rev. Dr. L. Elbert Wilson, 88, of Orlando, Fla., who was a former member of the faculty at Lycoming and an honorary member of its board of trustees and former pastor of Newberry United Methodist Church. Dr. Wilson died Saturday, March 10, 1979, in Florida Hospital, Orlando.

A member of the board of trustees at the college since 1948, he was named an honorary member in 1958. He taught sociology and New Testament from 1945 to 1948 at the college while serving as pastor of the Newberry church from 1943 to 1949. He served as a pastor in Pennsylvania for more than 42 years and was active in The United Methodist Church in many capacities.

Active in Boy Scouts for more than 60 years, Dr. Wilson was awarded its Silver Beaver Award in 1963. He had served in the Central Florida Council since 1960.

A graduate of the former Stamford College, Texas, and Union Theological Seminary, he also completed studies at Columbia University and the Pennsylvania State University. He was awarded the honorary Doctor of Humanities degree from Universidad Nacional Henriquez, Santa Domingo in 1965.

The Rev. Dr. Wilson was licensed to preach in 1909 and was ordained in 1915. He also served the Union English-speaking Church, Santo Domingo, for two years prior to moving to Florida in 1957 where he served several churches before retiring for the second time in June, 1967.

His wife predeceased him in 1972. Surviving are three sons, two sisters, eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Enough to say that the bird moves and makes its sound and is gone, that the green leaf browns,
that the wind, like the weather,
comes and goes,
that milk is of itself
a gathering of bones.

Let us walk then without shoes over the old earth.
Let us feel how at each falling step
we take root,
how at the lifting of each foot
we become more delicate than air.
Let us breathe in, to live by,
that which we cannot answer.

—William Kloefer

If you'd like a good example of something you can breathe in and live by, something you know is wonderful but can't explain or answer, look around you. These are your parents, your grandparents, aunts and uncles, brothers and sisters—those who love you.

As members of the class of 1979, you end your days on this campus surrounded by the same love which brought you here in the first place. I hope you never lose sight of it, although you'll never be able to fathom its depth.

It's time to commence, to begin anew. "Let us walk then without shoes over the old earth!"

—KENTON E. BLUMBERG
President, 1979-1980

Promotions and Tenure Decisions for Faculty

Promotions of four members of the Lycoming College faculty were approved and four additional members were granted tenure by the college board of trustees at their annual meeting.

Promoted from assistant professor to associate professor were Dr. Emily R. Jensen, English; Dr. Robert A. Larson, history; Dr. Paul A. MacKenzie, German; and Dr. Michael G. Roskan, political science.

Granted tenure were Miss Susan K. Biedler, assistant professor of library services; Dr. Howard C. Berthold, Jr., assistant professor of psychology; Dr. H. Bruce Weaver, assistant professor of business administration; and Dr. Robert A. Zaccaria, assistant professor of biology.

Dr. Jensen, who joined the staff in 1969, holds degrees from Jamestown College, the University of Denver and Pennsylvania State University. She is presently on a one-year leave of absence.

Dr. Larson was also appointed to the faculty in 1969. He is a graduate of The Citadel and was awarded both his master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Virginia. He was awarded a Professional Development Grant and a one-semester sabbatical by Lycoming in 1976-77 to complete a book-length manuscript.

Dr. MacKenzie joined the faculty at Lycoming in 1970 after receiving bachelor and master degrees from Boston University. He was awarded his doctorate from the same institution in 1971. He received a Professional Development Grant from Lycoming this year to assist him in the completion of a German textbook.

Dr. Roskan has been a member of the faculty since 1972. He received his undergraduate degree from the University of California at Berkeley and his advanced degrees from the University of California at Los Angeles and American University. He was awarded a Professional Development Grant in 1974 to assist him with the completion of a textbook and received a second grant in 1977 to study the Spanish elections, which also produced another publication. He was recently commissioned by Prentice-Hall Publishing Company to prepare a new textbook on Brazil, China, and South Africa.

Miss Biedler, a graduate of the University of Delaware and the University of Pittsburgh, came to Lycoming in 1975. She also received a Professional Development Grant last year for advanced study in library work.

Dr. Berthold, a member of the faculty since 1974, holds degrees from Franklin and Marshall College, the University of Iowa and the University of Massachusetts.

Dr. Weaver joined the Lycoming faculty in 1974. He is a graduate of Stetson University, Florida Technological University and Vanderbilt University.

Dr. Zaccaria came to Lycoming in 1973. He was awarded degrees by Bridgewater College and the University of Virginia. He was the recipient of two Professional Development Grants in 1975 and 1976 to complete research and a manuscript for a textbook.

CAMPUS NOTES

DAVID A. FRANZ, department of chemistry, served as a judge (analytical chemistry division) at the recent annual convention of Intercollegiate Student Chemists, held this year at Bloomsburg State College on April 28.

LOGAN A. RICHMOND, accounting department, has been elected president-elect of the North Central Chapter of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants for the ensuing year.

STAN WILK, sociology/anthropology department, who has served on the Editorial Board of the Anthropology and Humanism Quarterly, has been named Associate Editor of that journal. The journal is published by the Society for Humanistic Anthropology. Wilk has also been notified that he is the recipient of an NEH Fellowship to attend the seminar "Art and Society" being presented June 19 to August 10 by Philip Ruff, Benjamin Franklin Chair, Professor of Sociology, at the University of Pennsylvania.

MOON JO, sociology/anthropology department, has been notified that he is the recipient of a grant to cover all expenses for him to attend the Research Skills Development Institute, June 18-July 13, sponsored by the American Sociological Association. This institute will be held at Morgan State College in Baltimore, Md.

FREDRIC WILD, JR., English department, has been informed that he is the recipient of an NEH Summer Grant to study the affective response in film and in programs of visual literacy at New York University this summer.

SALC Prexy Argall Receives Finnegan Fellowship

David G. Argall, who recently completed his junior year as a political science major at Lycoming, is one of eight college students named to receive the James A. Finnegan Fellowship Award. The annual awards are made to outstanding students from Pennsylvania or attending colleges in the state.

Argall, a resident of Nesquehoning, will receive a $100 cash prize and a 10-week paid summer internship in a state agency. He has applied to work with the Republican leadership in the General Assembly in Harrisburg.

The eight annual Finnegan Awards, which are highly competitive, are granted on the basis of academic background, constructive participation in extra-curricular activities, and a demonstrated aptitude for a career in government or politics. The last Lycoming College student to be honored was Thomas Vanskie, a 1975 graduate from Shamokin, who is presently a law clerk in the federal court at Scranton. Vanskie graduated from Dickinson Law School in 1978.

Argall, a dean's list student, who will be serving his second term as president of the Student Association of Lycoming College next year, has participated in its numerous activities, including the Model United Nations Conference at Princeton University and the Model Congress. He is a member of Iruksa, a college honorary society organized to recognize "Warriors who win high honors."

Dave is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Argall, of Nesquehoning.

Special Gifts Phase of Partners in Progress Fund

William Pickelner, Special Gifts Chairman, announced that fourteen area residents have been named as division leaders of the Special Gifts phase of the Lycoming College Partners in Progress Campaign.

Chosen by Pickelner were Lester F. Bower, David Y. Brouse, Kenneth R. Brungard, Leland J. Calistri, Fred A. Foulkrod, Harold D. Hersberger, Jr., Clair W. Keefer, William S. Kieser, Esq., Dr. S. Terry Kraus, James H. Lamade, Morton Rauff, Robert E. Ruffaner, James Short and Harry A. Staib, III.

Division leaders have recruited 77 volunteer workers who will conduct public solicitation of funds in Williamsport and Lycoming County during May and early June. The campaign was officially launched last January with the Advanced Gifts phase of the drive to raise at least $1,700,000 to help finance construction of a new physical education/recreation center on campus. Total contributions to the campaign during the advanced gift drive have reached $1,337,783 following receipt of the latest two major gifts in the amount of $50,000 from Woolrich Woolen Mills, Inc. and $35,000 from Williamsport National Bank.

The public phase of the campaign was officially kicked off Tuesday, May 1, when leaders and workers of the Special Gifts Committee were guests at a dinner in Pennington Lounge. Participating in the program following the dinner were Pickelner, Nathan W. Stuart, national campaign chairman; Dr. Frederick E. Blumer, president of the college; Clifford R. Hayes, a partner in the architectural firm of Hayes, Lange, Suckling and Fruth, designers of the new sports complex; James G. Law, chairman of the Leadership Gifts Committee; George P. Flint, director of institutional relations at Lycoming; and Mrs. Roger Shipley and Mrs. Robert S. Yasui, who presented a check for $1,500 to the fund as co-chairmen of the campaign fund for Women of Lycoming College.

Special music was presented on the oboe, violin and piano by Mrs. Fred M. Thayer, her 7-year-old son, Marc and John W. Shannon '68.

NEW SOCCER COACH

J. Scott McNeill, a graduate of Lycoming in 1974 and a former member of the Warrior soccer team, will return to his alma mater next fall as coach of the Lycoming booters on a part-time basis.

McNeill, of 1374 West Third Street, Williamsport, will continue in his fulltime position as health educator on physical fitness for the Pennsylvania Department of Health. He will be replacing Nelson Phillips, who will be retiring at the end of the current academic year. Phillips, an assistant professor of physical education, has been coach of the Warriors since 1959.

McNeill served as a swimming instructor at the Williamsport Country Club from 1972-74 while an undergraduate at Lycoming. He has been employed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania since completing his studies at the college. He has also been active during the last several years in organizing and directing amateur soccer leagues in the Williamsport area. He is founder and director of both the Williamsport Indoor Soccer League and the Williamsport Adult Soccer League. He is also coordinator and an official of the American Youth Soccer Organization.

1979 OUTSTANDING ALUMNUS AWARD

Dr. Katherine Brakaw was born in Japan where her father was in charge of Presbyterian mission work. She was educated by her parents, until at age twelve, she traveled alone from Japan to Withersport to study at Lymington Seminary. Upon arrival, she spoke Japanese better than English, but after four years at the Seminary, she graduated as the Valedictorian of her Class in 1916. She then entered Wells College. There she played in every team, winning letters in hockey, tennis and basketball. She reveled in being immensely popular and became passionately fond of dancing.

Because of her athletic and social pursuits at Wells, her academic work suffered. Even so, Columbia University's prestigious medical school accepted her. It was only the second year that women were admitted, and she was, "They were clearly delighted." Relinquishing all fun, she studied morning and night. She spent her summer working as a waitress and cleaning houses—doing all she could to supplement her inadequate scholarship funds.

After medical school, internship and residency, she was assigned to be a missionary in China. On the way there, her orders were changed to India. After only two days there she realized that the mission was not needed. Facing a moment of truth, and without a swiveling, she decided she was more devoted to medicine and could not waste the excellent training she had received. She retraced her journey to Bombay, then to England and on to New York. It took twenty years to repay the debts incurred on her round-the-world trip.

She became first a licensed pediatrician and then a Lymington College alumna. On the way there, her orders were changed to India. After only two days there she realized that the mission was not needed. Facing a moment of truth, and without a swiveling, she decided she was more devoted to medicine and could not waste the excellent training she had received. She retraced her journey to Bombay, then to England and on to New York. It took twenty years to repay the debts incurred on her round-the-world trip.

In 1924, she was suddenly stricken with what was diagnosed as heart trouble. At the invitation of a distant cousin, she moved to her large farm in Ghent, N.Y. to recuperate. She recovered, but she could run a clinic there and continue to run sell-by-by clinics all over Columbia County. When the clinic was disbanded, and at age 65, she began again in private practice, which became enormous, and included children and grandchildren of her first patients.

Dr. Brakaw retired in 1957, after 53 years of service in the medical profession. In closing her, the American Medical Association, which she had had the honor of being elected to, she said she had the honor of being elected to the Association. She had tried cross-country skiing and it was indeed a fun. She could live very much to be with us in company tonight, but because of a back injury, she was unable to travel here.

At age 81, she enjoys painting, water color, in tending her garden, which has been a pleasure since she moved here. She has tried cross-country skiing and it was indeed a fun. She could live very much to be with us in company tonight, but because of a back injury, she was unable to travel here.

Below left: The Long family, including Mr. and Mrs. John F. Long, are shown as they received a Lymington College retiree. Presented by President Blumer, it was a retirement gift from the College. Below: Mr. Long being greeted by Professor Emeritus John F. Graham at the Alumni Banquet. Mr. Graham paid tribute to his good friend and faculty colleague on behalf of the College.

Senior Pledging Report

Senior Steve Davenport reported for the Class of 1979, stating that 105 members, or 44% of the Class of 1979 have signed five-year pledges ranging from $7.00 to $100.00 per year. This amounts to $1,160.00 per year for five years or a total pledge to the College of $5,800.00.

ABOVE Steve Davenport '79, one of the workers in the Senior Pledging Program, gave the report at the Alumni Banquet. President Gummer looked on with approval. We congratulate these young alumni on their loyalty to the alma mater.
